

Consolidation of companies in television and radio has led so far to constraints in the diversity of broadcast content and restriction of points of view in newscasting.

It is necessary for a democracy to retain public access to the media, and to allow that all points of view and all varieties of broadcast programming be kept alive.

Lifting of the rules on broadcast ownership will allow the biggest corporations to control both content and point-of-view.

Please support measures that allow diversity on American airways. No company should be able to dominate the market by buying the channels.
